

XUAN HIEN NGUYEN
(CINCINNATI)

Translating tridents

In this talk, we will first introduce the mean curvature flow, then discuss examples with some interesting behavior under the flow. From these examples, we will construct a new self-translating surface for the mean curvature flow. We are mainly interested in finding embedded surfaces. The strategy is inspired by Kapouleas' construction of minimal surfaces. The proof uses techniques from differential geometry and functional analysis.