The Mathematics of Weather Prediction

Abstract: All weather forecasts are dependent on numerical weather prediction in which large supercomputers are used to solve equations describing the physics of the atmosphere. This talk will describe the history of numerical weather prediction and how the solution of a complex collection of equations allows stimulation of the future state of the atmosphere.

March 8, 2020
Sunday, 1-2pm